DGFT, REVENUE DEPT AIM TO BOOST E-COMMERCE EXPORTS WITH DEDICATED HUBS

In a strategic move to enhance India's position in the global e-commerce market, the Directorate General of Foreign Trade (DGFT) is collaborating with the Department of Revenue to establish specialised e-commerce export hubs across the country.

This initiative aims to streamline the process for online export shipments and significantly boost India's e-commerce exports, which currently lag far behind competitors like China.

India aims to boost its e-commerce exports from $2 billion to $350 billion, aligning with China's success.

The government plans to establish e-commerce hubs for faster customs clearance, warehousing, and processing

. This initiative, supported by a public-private partnership, aims to enhance India's global e-commerce competitiveness by 2030.

GOVT CONSIDERS GLOBAL TRADE PROMOTION BODY TO BOOST MSME EXPORTS

The central government is reportedly considering the establishment of a global trade promotion organisation (GTPO) to enhance exports from micro, small, and medium enterprises (MSMEs), according to sources familiar with the matter.

This initiative may be proposed in the upcoming Union budget, as the country seeks to address its rising trade deficit and stimulate export growth, as reported by Mint.

The proposed GTPO is envisioned to be modelled after similar organisations in other countries, such as the Japan External Trade Organisation (JETRO) and the Australian Trade and Investment Commission (AUSTRADE).

Anil Bhardwaj's paper suggests India should establish a Global Trade Promotion Organization (GTPO) to support MSMEs in exporting.

The GTPO aims to have a global presence, assist with registration and certification, collaborate with Indian consulates, and reduce the trade deficit.

It would facilitate MSME participation in international events. India's merchandise exports decreased in 2024, leading to a widened trade deficit.

Discussions on GTPO's structure and implementation are ongoing, with details possibly in the upcoming Union budget.
